ENGLISH 1960S YEW, PINE AND GILTWOOD DEMILUNE CONSOLE TABLES, A PAIR

$12,650

A pair of English Midcentury yew, pine and giltwood demi-lune console tables from circa 1960 with radiating veneered top, lion head ring pulls, fluted legs and apron, as well as scrolling feet. This pair of English Midcentury console tables, crafted around 1960, embodies the timeless elegance of the era. Made from yew and pine, they each boast a striking radiating veneered top that draws the eye with its intricate patterns and warm hues. The tables are adorned with exquisite lion head ring pulls, which add a touch of regal charm. Their fluted legs and apron showcase the craftsmanship of the period, with fine attention to detail evident in the subtle yet stunning carving work. The scrolling feet provide a sense of balance and grace, completing the tables' harmonious design. These demilune tables are versatile pieces that can enhance various areas of your home. Placed in an entryway, they create an inviting atmosphere, offering a surface for decorative elements like floral arrangements, sculptural pieces, or a welcoming table lamp. Their semi-circular shape allows them to fit snugly against a wall without taking up too much space. In a living room or dining area, these tables can serve as elegant display spaces for your cherished collectibles, family photos, or a selection of vintage books. Their midcentury charm complements both classic and modern interior designs.
