ENGLISH 19TH CENTURY MAHOGANY DEMILUNE CONSOLE TABLES WITH TAPERED LEGS, A PAIR

$16,200

A pair of English mahogany demilune console tables from the 19th century with tapered legs, spade feet and thin banding. This pair of 19th-century English mahogany demilune console tables is a striking embodiment of classic elegance. Crafted with an impeccable eye for detail, these tables exhibit timeless design and fine craftsmanship. Each table stands on graceful tapered legs that culminate in spade feet, exuding a sense of stability and refinement. The tabletops are the true stars of these pieces.

Featuring exquisite mahogany wood with beautifully figured burl accents, they showcase the natural beauty of the wood. The rich, warm tones and intricate grain patterns make these tables not only functional but also artistic statements in your home.

The décor is further enhanced by delicate banding, which adds a touch of sophistication without overpowering the tables' overall simplicity. As versatile pieces of furniture, these demilune console tables can find a place in various rooms. In an entryway, they make a grand statement, providing a surface to display art or collectibles and a convenient spot to drop keys or mail. Placed in a living room or dining area, they serve as elegant platforms for decorative items or can be used for serving during gatherings. Their demilune shape allows them to fit snugly against a wall, making them space-efficient additions to your home. Whether used individually or as a pair, these tables are bound to elevate the aesthetics of any room. With their classic design, they seamlessly blend with a range of interior styles, from traditional to transitional.
