

FRENCH TURN OF THE CENTURY FAUX BAMBOO MIRROR WITH INTERSECTING CORNERS, 1900S

$2,850

This French Turn of the Century wooden faux bamboo wall mirror, dating back to circa 1900, features intersecting corners, a light brown finish, black accents, and an attractive patina. The mirror combines elegance and simplicity in a harmonious fashion. The mirror's wooden frame, skillfully crafted to resemble bamboo, features intersecting corners that create a visually appealing geometric pattern. The light brown finish of the frame is gracefully complemented by subtle black accents, which serve to emphasize the faux bamboo texture and add depth to the piece. The subtle hues of the frame, combined with the pleasing patina, imbue the mirror with character and charm, making it a delightful addition to any home. The clear mirror plate, surrounded by the faux bamboo frame, offers a reflective surface that not only serves a practical purpose but also enhances the mirror's visual appeal. The contrast between the smooth mirror plate and the textured frame creates a pleasing balance, ensuring that the mirror remains a captivating focal point in any space. With its rustic appearance, intersecting corners, and nice patina, this French Turn of the Century wooden faux bamboo wall mirror will make for a charming addition to any home, perhaps hung above a side table, particularly in a mountain cabin or country home.
