VINTAGE ENGLISH OAK EXTENSION TABLE WITH TWO LEAVES AND FOUR LEGS ON CASTERS

$10,800

An English vintage oak dining or conference table from the Mid-20th Century with circular top, banding, two leaves extending it to an oval table, four legs and brass casters. Created in England during the midcentury period, this versatile table features a circular top measuring 60 inches of diameter, extending to an oval 107.5 inches of width when its two additional leaves are added. This dark toned top is accented with a lighter banding on the outer edge. The ensemble is raised on a convenient base made of four carved supports resting on a low shelf, while the table is resting on four saber legs mounted on petite brass casters allowing it to be moved at will. With its nice proportions, convenient features and dark patina, this vintage English oak dining table from the mid 20th century will make for a wonderful addition to any home placed in a breakfast area or dining room, or even perhaps an office used as a conference table.
